Beth Israel Hospital

WHAT IT IS — WHAT IT OFFERS

Beth Israel Hospital is a voluntary, non-profit general hospital which has established a tradition of high purpose that has guided its policy since the beginning. This is to provide the best care for all patients, regardless of race, creed or national origin.

The original Hospital opened its doors to the first patients in 1916 on Townsend Street, Roxbury, Mass. But soon the 45-bed institution was found to be inadequate, not only in size, but in the scope of its services. And in 1928, the move was made to a larger and more modern facility at the present location on Brookline Avenue, Boston, Mass.

This transformation of the Hospital involved more than physical expansion. It embraced programs of medical education and medical research — programs that provided a crucial, positive and stimulating influence upon the standard of patient care.

It is now 30 years since the doors of the present 366-bed Hospital were opened. What does the record show?

The Hospital has served a substantial segment of the Boston community. Over 200,000 patients have been treated as in-patients and have been given more than two million days of care.

A Home Care Program provides comprehensive care to a group of patients with chronic disease in their own homes. This is equivalent to operating a 40-bed ward service, reaching into many parts of metropolitan Boston.

The School of Nursing has gradually increased its size and has, by this time, graduated close to 900 nurses who have served patients in this community and in many parts of the country.

The Ward Services have treated over 75,000 patients, giving them almost one million days of medical and hospital care totally free, or at charges which were less than the cost of providing for their care.

There have been almost two million patient visits in the Out-Patient Department, either free or at charges much less than the actual cost.

A major increase in facilities was undertaken at the end of the second decade — to increase facilities for private patients, to provide for a major new service (Obstetrics), and to supply additional and improved research laboratories.

There are now seven major services. To the grouping of speciality fields was added physical medicine and rehabilitation, which was placed under full-time medical direction in 1954.

Medical service of crucial value is rendered to many clients of all other Jewish Communal agencies. These services are essential to the effective conduct of the total Jewish Community program.

In addition to medical programs with Harvard Medical School and Tufts University School of Medicine, organized education programs and affiliation now permeate and influence the services rendered to patients in the following areas:

- a. Dentistry — University of Pennsylvania.
- b. Social Work — Simmons, Boston University, Boston College.
- c. Nursing — Boston University School of Nursing.
- d. Dietetics — approved internship.
- e. Physical Therapy — Tufts University.
- f. Public Health — Harvard School of Public Health.

There are also the following technician and assistant training programs:

- a. Laboratory technician
- b. X-Ray technician
- c. Dental assistants.

A variety of special post-graduate refresher courses for physicians and dentists are given.

The research program has expanded into new fields. The increasing financial support received from agencies which evaluate and grant funds is a good measure of the quality of the work being done by the research staff. Patients everywhere are benefiting from discoveries made at Beth Israel Hospital.

Thousands of doctors practicing or teaching in every state of the union and in many other countries have received essential elements of their organized professional education in the Beth Israel Hospital.

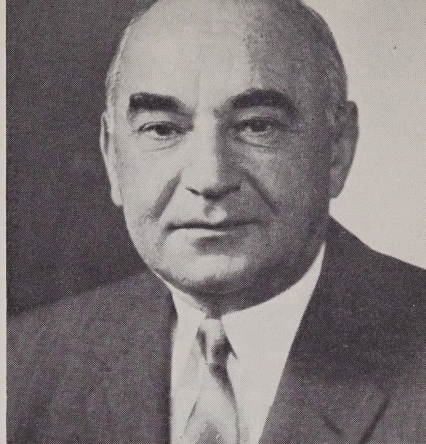

Among the patients who have come to this Hospital for medical care, are tens of thousands from every segment of the Boston community, every section of the United States and from many other countries.

The goals which have been set in the field of patient care, education and research by Hospital leaders have been relentlessly pursued.

By applying new knowledge gained from teaching and research activities — by utilizing professional skills and medical resources — the purpose for which Beth Israel Hospital was founded 42 years ago continues to be fulfilled: A high quality of care for all patients.

Report of the President

Abram Berkowitz

(Remarks made at the Beth Israel Hospital Anniversary Dinner, December 7, 1958)

This year marked the 42nd year of the establishment of the Beth Israel Hospital and its 30th year at the Brookline Avenue site. It is too bad that all of us could not have attended the various events that formed part of the celebrations. We would have felt that the effort we put into the Hospital had been amply rewarded.

This year has witnessed many changes and much progress at our Hospital.

Much attention has been given by the Board of Trustees and the Administration to reorganizing the framework of top management to meet the challenge of size, complexity and cost.

We have initiated training programs for supervisors and other personnel to make them better qualified to carry out their duties.

Mechanization of our accounting is being achieved through an IBM installation. This will make billing more satisfactory to patients and to the Hospital and will later provide us with more accurate cost and other figures.

The arrangement of space for the Admitting Office has eliminated much of the inconvenience to arriving patients.

We have installed automatic food-vending machines in the Coffee Shop. This now makes it possible for visitors to get food and drink at any hour of the day and night. This was not possible before.

The special reservation of beds on 3 South made so that we can admit emergency cases has provided a facility the value of which cannot be measured in dollars. Now only rarely, if ever, do we have to tell desperately sick patients that we cannot provide them with hospital care they need.

The recovery room has been enlarged and its staff of nurses and other professional personnel increased. This has definitely resulted in better patient care immediately after surgery.

Short-term goals and long-term objectives of the Hospital have been established.

We have initiated new methods and techniques for service in many other areas of the Hospital.

Many other changes aimed at improving our service to patients and their families have also been made. Such changes are difficult to make and the results are not always immediately obvious. Much still remains to be done but the road ahead has in many areas been mapped out.

We are confident that when the changes have been fully implemented, our expectation of better patient care and greater efficiency and economy will be realized.

All of these things and many others are only incidental to the main objectives of the Hospital which are, as stated in our by-laws, "to give medical and surgical aid and care, to give dispensary and out-patient service, to give these services to the sick and disabled of any race, creed or color, and to carry on such educational, philanthropic and scientific activities and functions as are a part of efficient modern hospital service."

How have we performed the objectives laid down by our by-laws?

During the year we had 342 beds in active use except for a period last winter when, because of the flu epidemic in the community, we asked the doctors not to send us patients unless they felt that it was imperative.

We provided 106,040 patient days of care to 11,993 patients during the year, while 2,631 babies were born at the Hospital.

We noted with some ceremony the 20,000th mother to give birth to babies in our Hospital since March, 1950.

We took care of 56,410 patient visits in the Out-patient Department.

We estimate about one-third of all patients were non-Jewish, made up of all races, creeds and color.

We carry on a well-rounded program of teaching and research, although in this expanding field, it is not as extensive as some would like. Let me impress upon you that teaching and research are not luxuries. In many instances they have a direct bearing on treatment of private patients. Many doctors will testify to this.

Unfortunately, costs continue to climb notwithstanding savings effected. This is due in no small degree to increased free care provided by the Hospital in the wards and in the Out-patient Department.

The amount of free care given expands and contracts with the economy of the community.

To meet the budget for the coming year, we again had to increase our rates, but even our increased rates are no higher and, in many instances, are lower than comparable hospital rates.

In the year ended September 30, 1958, we just about broke even, our income equalling our expenses. This feat of balancing our budget was made possible only through the generous subvention given to us by the Associated Jewish Philanthropies, the significant and substantial help of the Women's Auxiliary and the income from our endowment funds.

Of the $5,234,000 spent in operating the Hospital, $3,433,000 was spent in salary and wages alone.

Much thought is being given to this problem of cost, not only by your trustees and administrators, but by many other local and national agencies. Unfortunately, the complete solution is not in sight.

In many areas not involving bed capacity, our Hospital is bursting at the seams. After careful consideration by committees of the Board of Trustees, it appears that the Out-patient Department and the Emergency Ward must be substantially rebuilt, that the Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation Department must be enlarged, that the patient care areas in the North Building, built in 1928, needs to be modernized, that additional space is needed in which to carry out research now going on at the Hospital, and that a new building designed to house the admission offices, clinical laboratories, teaching facilities and space for ambulatory diagnostic services is needed.

Before we go ahead with such an extensive program, additional facts as to costs and operating expenses will have to be ascertained and studied not only by the Hospital officers and trustees, but also by the officers and trustees of the Associated Jewish Philanthropies.

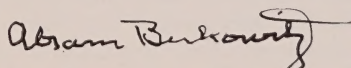

When it is decided to go ahead with the program, we will need help from all of you.

To the many men and women — lay and professional — the Medical Staff, the Women's Auxiliary, the male volunteer corps, the General Director and his assistants, and the many other employees who have done so much for the Hospital in the year just past, I extend not only the thanks for the Board of Trustees, but also my personal thanks.

We record with genuine sorrow the passing of Sidney B. Goldstein, a member of our Board. His loss is being deeply felt by the Hospital and the community.

To the many members of the Board who have devoted so many hours of their time to the welfare of the Hospital, making my job so much easier, I extend my personal thanks.

For the opportunity of serving which has done so much for me, I thank you!

President

Report of the General Director

Cecil G. Sheps, M.D.

(Remarks made at the Beth Israel Hospital Anniversary Dinner, December 7, 1958)

During the last few days, we have had heart-warming celebrations of great achievements. So much has been accomplished in so few years that everyone associated with the Beth Israel Hospital is certainly justified in having a deep sense of pride.

The Women's Auxiliary Luncheon, on November 25th, was really the first event. There, 2500 women heard the announcement that the Auxiliary had undertaken the obligation of providing $250,000 for the complete rebuilding and modernization of the Out-patient Department. In the last two days, the Social Service Department, the School of Nursing, and the Medical Staff conducted Homecoming programs and gala birthday celebrations. These were fine days of warm reunion and good fellowship together with interesting scientific papers by staff members and distinguished alumni. The School of Nursing Alumnae Association helped mark the occasion by making a contribution of $1,000 to the Hospital Endowment Fund.

Tonight you have heard from others of the gratifying progress that has already been made in raising funds for the establishment of the Herrman L. Blumgart Professorship of Medicine at the Harvard Medical School.

The Medical Staff Homecoming program ended with a dinner last night. There, Mr. Berkowitz, on behalf of the Board of Trustees, presented Certificates of Appreciation to 127 doctors who have helped to earn for the Hospital the excellent reputation which it enjoys, by having served on its Medical Staff for 25 years or more.

A hospital is not built by constructing a building and opening it. It is built day by day. Our Hospital was built by the toil of a great many people over the years. It was conceived in the hearts and minds of hundreds of people, most of whom came to Boston from foreign lands, after the turn of the century. It was born through the efforts of thousands, who contributed their dimes, their nickels and their quarters on Sunday mornings for the development, first of the hospital in Roxbury and then for its transformation into the kind of community institution we now have.

There are some here tonight who were present at the groundbreaking ceremonies on Brookline Avenue on October 5, 1924. They will remember the remarkable address by Mr. Louis E. Kirstein. I think that all of you will marvel, as I did, at the prophetic character of his words. He said:

Let my task . . . be to tell you how I view the problems that face us now. Let me try to tell you what ideals I should like to place before myself today, when we begin to erect the new Beth Israel Hospital; when we begin to send forth, probably for all time, a new project. What better opportunity than this for both high resolution, and a statement of guiding ideals together with a firm determination to live up to these ideals.

Mr. Kirstein then presented five ideals in such words as:

The first . . . is the ideal of self-realization. May we always be able to say, both to the public, and what is more important, to ourselves: here is the thing we hoped for. This is what we wanted. We achieved it by dint of hard work.

The second ideal that the occasion suggests, is the ideal of sympathetic treatment when needed.

The third ideal is as important as it is simple. Within the radius of a stone's throw from here, there are kindred institutions, wherein work has been done, and is now in progress, the importance of which from the standpoint of health, both public and private, cannot be over-emphasized. The very proximity of these institutions should be an inspiration, for after all, the right of the Jews to build a hospital, in the location of their own choosing . . . is of recent origin. May our use of that right always be justified . . . let us enter into this community of medical agencies with open-minded and open-handed co-operation . . . let us recognize and pay due tribute to the position which these institutions have achieved by merit of service, let us know that the same position belongs to us when, and only when, we have justified it, as I know we shall.

There is yet another ideal. It is clear that the work of the hospital does not end with its service to its patients and that the hospital must make a contribution in the training of physicians.

The next ideal is that of research . . . we should remember that we can add to the knowledge which will be of service to men by encouraging research. To this research we should stimulate our staff. If we do . . . and if from the Beth Israel Hospital come repeated contributions to science, I for one, have no fear of the future.

You will know that I have raised high ideals. I know that the road ahead is difficult. We are only breaking ground today. The easiest way is usually a poor way. I want the hospital to choose the hard road. I know that if we do we shall certainly succeed. I have no doubt though, that we will travel the road and, on the way, we shall have much pain and consequently much pleasure. We shall look back upon its several turns with keen appreciation. My hope is that the entire community will trod it together.

This, then, was a mission — a great and inspiring one. The sights were set high. We've come quite a long way down that road — and with amazing speed.

The central point, the focus for all of this effort, is the patient — for, after all, the patient is the reason for medicine. If patient care is to be first rate it not only needs to be given, but it must be studied, it must be taught. A hospital is not simply a facility — it is a program of care. It has a spirit and a personality.

Let me illustrate this spirit by telling you about a case which we treated on the Ward Service last winter. Last December we admitted a resident of the Hebrew Home for the Aged to the Ward Service. He was 93 years old. Because of Arteriosclerotic changes in the blood vessels of his legs, he had developed an ulcer on one foot and was threatened with gangrene. After examination by our surgeons and our internists, a program of careful conservative medical treatment was prescribed. If this should fail, there would ordinarily be only one recourse left — amputation of his leg. A few weeks went by, medical treatment had not helped, and gangrene was threatening seriously. He was immediately readmitted to the Hospital. He did not lose his leg. Instead, a new blood vessel was successfully grafted in his thigh, 18 inches long, from the groin to the knee. This man is now vigorous and active. Why? Because his care was provided through a health service in the Hebrew Home for the Aged which was closely integrated with a community teaching and research hospital.

The organized functional relationship for Medical Care between the Beth Israel Hospital and the Home for the Aged, means that the residents of the Home are secure in the knowledge that the facilities and skills of an outstanding general hospital are available to them at the other end of the telephone, so to speak. The ability of the staff of the Beth Israel Hospital to treat this patient by the newest methods and thus save his leg is built out of its program of research and education. This type of surgery is new — only a few years old. Experimental preparation in any field closes the gap between discovery and application. This man of 93 is the oldest patient on record for whom a successful blood vessel graft has been performed. It is only when you have a hospital of this type with its internal balanced program of patient care, research and education and its external program of close relationships with other community institutions, thus making for immediate comprehensive and continued care — that we are able to apply today's knowledge today on behalf of our patients.

And thus, we have in this case, a man who in January went to the hospital to lose his leg and in September, on Yom Kippur, now 94 years of age, stood erect on both legs, walked to dais and blew the Shofar at the Services. The sound of the ram's horn as he blew it that night, not only recalled an ancient tradition of the Jewish people, but also sent out for all the world to hear, a note of triumph for the union of medical science and community service.

The community has set us on a great mission. The horizons of our ultimate goal are constantly being pushed back by medical science and social change. The progress of the past is simply an indication of what the prospects might be in the future.

We can and should rejoice in our success. But, success is a journey, and not a destination. An institution like ours never quite reaches its goal. It is in the very nature of things that we should have difficult problems, important needs and great opportunities. Continuous forward progress is dependent upon the leadership of the Board of Trustees and the professional staff and the understanding and support of the community generally. That is why I am confident in our future.

Report of the President

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY

Mrs. Julius Freedman

The scope of activities of the Women's Auxiliary is so vast that a full report would encompass a volume in itself. The credit for its achievements rests with the membership whose generosity in service as well as in financial support makes possible a variety of activities, all aimed at improved patient care.

The Women's Auxiliary continues to support free care in our Out-Patient Department through its annual membership dues. We are proud to report that our interest in the Out-Patient Department now includes financial responsibility for the reconstruction and renovation of the building for which we have pledged the sum of $250,000. Proceeds from annual luncheons and from Life Memberships will be used for this purpose.

During 1957-1958 our Annual Luncheon was held on one day at the Commonwealth Armory, thus bringing together almost 3,000 women in a gala social occasion.

Life-saving equipment has been provided to the Hospital through proceeds of our Gift Shop where dozens of women devote hundreds of hours of service each week. The Thrift Shop, which provides drugs, blood, and special nurses for ward patients, continues to be our largest fund-raising activity, due to the efforts of a devoted group of volunteers and a generous membership which provides new and used merchandise to be sold.

The Remembrance Fund, which supports cancer and heart research as well as special social service needs, continues to swell its coffers. Membership in BIBS (Beth Israel Babies) makes possible the care of premature babies of ward patients.

The Auxiliary continued its service to the Hospital staff by assisting in finding housing and with other problems of adjustment to a new community; by giving a luncheon for wives of house officers; by furnishing recreational and social facilities for house officers; and by holding a tea for all our graduate nurses. Scholarships for student and graduate nurses as well as for technicians continue as a regular part of our program. Funds for leisure-time activities were provided for student nurses and dietetic interns.

The publication of our newsletter, HIGHLIGHTS, on a bi-monthly basis has kept our membership informed not only of Auxiliary activities but of interesting programs within the Hospital. It serves as an educational tool for Auxiliary members as well as for female employees of the Hospital, for the Trustees, and for other Hospital auxiliaries to whom it is distributed regularly.

The Junior Auxiliary, composed of a group of employed young women under the sponsorship of the Women's Auxiliary, continues its educational program, its service activities, and its social affairs in support of the Tumor and Cancer Clinic of the Hospital.

Although Volunteer Service is under Hospital administration, a large percentage of the volunteers are members of the Women's Auxiliary, and we are proud of them. In addition to those serving in areas directly working with patients are the women who help in the Auxiliary office doing typing, sorting, and telephoning, the Gift Shop and Thrift Shop volunteers, and the many committee chairmen, workers, and members-at-large, all working in the interests of our patients and as public relations messengers throughout the community.

Included in many of the above-mentioned activities are the more than 1100 members of our six branches which carry on active programs of public relations, volunteer service, and fund raising in their own communities and bring the message of the Beth Israel Hospital to their friends and neighbors. Their ever-expanding membership and ever-widening areas of activity are important factors in our entire program, and their leaders are to be congratulated for the service they are rendering to the B.I.

The job of directing the activities of an organization such as the Women's Auxiliary cannot be done alone. The intelligent counsel and cooperation of my Executive Committee and Board as well as the devoted services of our paid staff have made what might be a very difficult job one that has been stimulating and satisfying.

Throughout the history of the Beth Israel Hospital the Women's Auxiliary has woven a pattern of well-defined services which are very much part of the over-all Hospital program of patient care, medical education, and research. There is no doubt that as the Hospital expands and continues to meet the dynamic demands of the modern medical scene, the Women's Auxiliary will be called on to share in these changes in those areas in which it has always served and in others where women can and should make their contribution. I know that our organization will continue to respond to these demands and challenges in the same spirit and with the same warm enthusiasm that it has always shown.

Our Volunteers

Approximately 579 volunteers gave 50,687 hours of service during the period from October 1, 1957, to September 30, 1958. Although part-time volunteers their sense of responsibility and enthusiasm was the motivating force behind their work.

Special recognition is given to those workers, whose names are recorded below, for the unusual number of hours they volunteered on behalf of the Hospital and its patients.

To these and hundreds of other devoted men and women, including the Women's Auxiliary, the Hospital expresses its gratitude and appreciation for the dedicated efforts in helping the Hospital provide quality care for all patients.

Contributions

Contributions are of crucial importance in helping the Hospital carry out the community aspects of its program for the needy, education and research, in the face of constantly rising costs.

While funds for research are made available by government agencies and foundations, donations — whatever their size — play an important part in the Hospital's comprehensive patient-care program.

Recorded below are the names of those contributors who gave $100 or more during the period covered by this report. Space does not permit the listing of 750 contributors of smaller gifts, totaling $7,903.00, received during the same period.

Also received from thoughtful members of the community were books, flowers, medical equipment, toys, etc.

For all these donations — whether in cash or kind — the Hospital expresses its grateful thanks.
